

Twenty-nine listings, one host, one earner

Every listing here runs through a single Airbnb account, Alterstay Jogja: six whole houses, five Rumah Teteh houses and eighteen guesthouse rooms. One villa earns roughly half of it. The six houses are examined in full; the rest are counted, not dissected.

What the portfolio earns

ALL 29 LISTINGS · PER YEAR

Airbnb revenue across every listing, and what the same locations and unit sizes support according to AirDNA. The gap is not evenly spread: six houses carry almost all of it, and twenty-three listings are close to dormant on this channel.

AIRBNB REVENUE TODAY $125,936 29 listings. The six whole houses are 97% of it.	WHAT THE LOCATIONS SUPPORT $292,127 AirDNA's model for each unit's own size and location

Dormant on Airbnb does not mean empty

Ten reviews in twelve months across twenty-three listings is not a quiet patch, it is a channel that has stopped working. But these properties are trading — just elsewhere, and under other names:

- Roemah Kenari is a 19-room guesthouse on Booking.com, Agoda, Traveloka, Expedia and Google Hotels, rated 8.3. Only eight rooms are on Airbnb — and Agoda quotes about $33 against Airbnb's $39–42. The cheapest place to book it is not the one being neglected.
- Dalem Kamulyan sells on Agoda and OYO as Capital O 93994 Dalem Kamulyan Syariah Guest House, at roughly a fifth of its Airbnb rate. AirDNA models that location at $54 a night; the Airbnb listings ask $25.67 and have never taken a reviewed booking.
- Omah Gerjen 29 appears on Agoda as Omah Gerjen 29 by Bukit Vista — the same rival manager brand that fronts Oemah Larasati on tiket.com.

So part of the gap below is revenue already being earned at lower rates on other platforms, not revenue missing altogether. What is unambiguous is that rates contradict each other across channels, and that the Airbnb channel — the one with the least commission drag and the most direct guest relationship — is the one left idle.

Three ways to read the upside

Ordered by how much of it rests on evidence rather than inference. Only the first is measured.

01 Fix the six houses only

The measured, low-risk case: pricing and listing work on the whole houses, nothing else touched.

The strategy: drop the rooms, sell whole places

TESTED AGAINST AIRDNA

The plan on the table is to cancel the eighteen single-room listings and run whole places only. Tested against the numbers, it is the right call — but not uniformly, and one execution detail decides whether it works at all.

Room-by-room against whole-place, same coordinates

AirDNA's projection for each cluster sold as individual rooms, versus the same building sold as one whole property. The third column is what the rooms actually earn on Airbnb today.

CLUSTER	ROOMS	EARNING TODAY	ROOM MODEL	WHOLE-PLACE MODEL	CONFIG	VS TODAY	REVIEWS AT RISK
Roemah Kenari anchor: C2 · 42 reviews	8	$605	$34,400	$25,000	8 BR · 16 guests 37% · $186	+$24,395	134
Omah Gerjen 29 anchor: 2A · 5 reviews	4	$621	$13,200	$10,600	4 BR · 10 guests 35% · $83	+$9,979	8
Dalem Kamulyan no anchor — nothing reviewed	6	$0	$38,400	$22,600	6 BR · 16 guests 39% · $159	+$22,600	0
All 18 rooms	18	$1,226	$86,000	$58,200		+$56,974	142

Read the middle two columns carefully. On paper the room model is worth $86,000 and the whole-place model only $58,200 — rooms look better. But the room model has never been reached: after four years these eighteen listings earn $1,226 a year between them. Comparing against a number nobody has ever hit is not a decision; comparing against $1,226 is.

● Dalem Kamulyan — convert, no hesitation

Six listings, zero reviews in their entire history, zero revenue. There is literally nothing to lose. The Pakem rice-field setting models at $159 a night as a six-bedroom villa, and its comparables are the strongest of any cluster here — Eesa Villa at $26.4k, Griya Bunbun at $22.4k. It is also currently sold through OYO as a budget "Capital O" room at roughly a fifth of its Airbnb rate, which is actively destroying the positioning a rice-field villa should have.

$0 today → $22,600 modelled · 0 reviews at risk

● Omah Gerjen 29 — convert

Eight lifetime reviews is a small price. The city-centre four-bedroom comparables are better than AirDNA's own projection suggests: Prime Location City Centre runs $22.3k at 64% occupancy and Loji Sindu $19.1k — both roughly double the $10.6k model. Convert listing 2A so the five reviews and the 5.0 rating carry over.

$621 today → $10,600 modelled, plausibly more · 8 reviews at risk

● Roemah Kenari — fix the price before you cancel anything

This is the one to hold back. It is a genuine nineteen-room guesthouse rated 8.3 across four OTAs, and 134 lifetime reviews sit on these eight listings. Its Airbnb failure has an identifiable, cheap cause: Agoda sells it at about $33 while Airbnb asks $39–42. Airbnb is the most expensive place to book it, so nobody books it there. That is a pricing error, not proof the room model is wrong. Fix parity, give it two quarters, and convert only if the rooms still will not move. Converting now also means every whole-place booking has to block nineteen rooms across the other channels.

$605 today · 134 reviews at risk · whole-place models $25,000 vs $34,400 as rooms

The detail that decides it: convert, never re-list

Airbnb lets you change an existing listing's room type from Private room to Entire place. That keeps the reviews, the rating and the listing age. Creating a fresh whole-place listing instead throws all of it away and starts at zero — and this portfolio already shows exactly what zero looks like:

- Dalem Kamulyan — six listings, zero reviews, zero revenue, ever.
- Rumah Teteh Seturan — zero reviews, no AirDNA record.
- Rumah Teteh Kledokan 1–3 — two to three reviews each, all near-dormant.

Every listing in this portfolio that started cold has stayed cold. So convert the strongest room in each building rather than opening a new one: Omah Gerjen 2A (5 reviews, 5.0) and, if Roemah Kenari ever converts, C2 (42 reviews, 4.88). Dalem Kamulyan has no anchor to inherit — nothing there has ever been reviewed — so that one starts cold whatever you do, and should be budgeted six to nine months to build a review base.

Where the rooms should keep selling

Cancelling the room listings on Airbnb is not the same as abandoning the room business. Roemah Kenari is a nineteen-room guesthouse rated 8.3 on Booking.com, Agoda, Traveloka and Expedia — that is hotel distribution, and it works. The room product belongs on those channels. Airbnb is where whole places sell: 97% of this portfolio's Airbnb revenue already comes from entire homes, and one-bedroom units are 44% of Sleman's supply against 6% for five-bedroom-plus. Match the product to the channel — rooms on the OTAs, whole places on Airbnb. The one operational constraint is the calendar: a whole-place booking has to block every room on the other channels, which is a channel-manager rule, not a strategy problem.

Six patterns that run through all of them

PORTFOLIO-WIDE

These are not six separate problems with six separate properties. They are one operating habit repeated six times, which is what makes them cheap to fix together.

- They are priced $52 a night below the listings they compete with

Median base rate across twelve rivals pulled from the same two Airbnb searches is $169. Across these six it is $117. Review quality is not the explanation — the two sets are level on that, 31 reviews median against 30, and every one of these six sits at 4.8 or better. The gap is what is being asked, not what is being delivered.

12 rivals from the same search pages · $169 vs $117 median base rate

- Four of six charge the same on Saturday as Tuesday

Only Joglo Wardani (+40%) and Villa Juliette (+22%) price the weekend. Among rivals it is near-universal: five of the seven that could be measured add 10-35%. The other four here sell roughly 104 high-demand nights a year at midweek rates, in a market whose guests are largely domestic weekend groups.

Sat vs Tue, same November week, sampled live on both sets

- The listings are consistently thinner than their rivals

Median photo count 46 against 63. Median amenities 30 against 43. Median description 417 characters against 869 — and four rivals run past 2,000. Villa Juliette is the only one of the six that competes on depth, and it is also the only one earning at the top of the market.

medians, six properties vs twelve rivals

- A standing discount runs on five of six — including peak dates

8.6% to 13.1% off every single date sampled, New Year and Eid included. That is not a promotion, it is a permanent markdown applied to the nights that need it least. Villa Juliette runs no discount and earns more than the other five combined.

discount visible on all 8 sampled windows

- Not one cover photo leads with a pool or an exterior

Four of the six have a pool. Every listing opens on an interior — a kitchen, a corridor, a lounge. The cover is the only thing most guests ever see of a property, and here it is consistently the weakest asset rather than the strongest.

6 of 6 covers reviewed image by image

- No public replies, anywhere

Across all 184 reviews on these six listings, the host has responded publicly to exactly zero. Alterstay is a Superhost with a 100% private response rate and an under-an-hour reply time — the habit is there, it just never reaches the page where future guests read.

184 reviews · 0 public responses

Normal for this market

NOT A GAP — AN OPENING

- Smoke and CO alarms

None of the six declare one — but neither do ten of the twelve rivals. Roughly $10 of hardware per property would make these listings unusual rather than merely compliant.

2 of 12 rivals declare an alarm

- Written photo captions

All 343 photos here use Airbnb's auto-generated placeholder. So do ten of the twelve rivals. The one that does it properly, Imalee, writes captions on 78 of its 104 photos and charges $215 a night.

Bisma Balcony sits outside this model

No AirDNA revenue record and no reviews since January 2025. Treated as a relaunch rather than an optimisation: the figure is what the market supports for its size and location, not an uplift on a measured base. Market normal for its size and location is $9,300 a year, which would take the portfolio to $165,627.

0-90 days — Pricing and listing corrections

Weekend pricing on the four that are flat, discount discipline on peak dates, six cover photos, the Joglo Wardani bathroom field, and the amenity lists. No capital, no photography commission beyond reshoots.

Saturday equals Tuesday at $109, on the fastest-growing listing in the portfolio (+70% reviews year on year).
- NOW

Raise the rate
$109 base against Villa Sambisari at $192 and Villa de Tristan at $149 in the same temple corridor, at comparable occupancy.
- SOON

Tell guests when the pool is down
A 4-star review reports arriving to an unusable pool with no prior notice. One message would have prevented it.
- SOON

Say the pool suits 8, not 12
A guest notes it "feels cramped" for 12 adults. Setting that expectation protects the rating.
- LATER

Balance the photo set
7 porch shots and 6 of bedroom 1, but only 1 kitchen photo and 2 of the pool.

THE PHOTO A GUEST SEES FIRST

GOOD

A traditional joglo interior shot on axis: exposed timber roof trusses, patterned encaustic floor tiles, timber-framed doors, low seating.

Strong — the most distinctive cover of the three Oemah houses and genuinely characteristic of Java. The irony is that the best-shot house is the weakest earner, because it is the only one of the trio with no pool.

PHOTO SET

- 81% landscape — well suited to the search grid
- But bedrooms 2-5 get one photo each and bathrooms 2-4 one each; a 14-guest house barely shows where people sleep
- 6 exterior shots and 5 filed as 'Additional photos' — unlabelled filler

WHAT GUESTS WROTE

“Just a heads up, it might feel a bit older and be prepared for some ants and bugs.”

WHAT TO DO, IN ORDER

- NOW

Add weekend pricing
Saturday and Tuesday are both $109, and this is the weakest earner of the three Oemah houses.
- NOW

Photograph the bedrooms properly
Bedrooms 2-5 have one photo each in a house sold for 14 guests. Five images are filed as unlabelled "Additional photos".
- SOON

Deal with the pests and the AC
A 4-star review warns about ants and bugs; another describes mosquitoes in the back bedroom and weak AC in the front. Both are cheap and both show up in the ratings.
- SOON

Lean into what it does have
It is the only Oemah house with no pool, so it cannot win the pool filter. Its cover — a genuine joglo interior — is the best of the three; the temple corridor and the architecture are the angle.
- LATER

Reconcile the channel listings
Hotels.com advertises 15 guests from $145 while Airbnb says 14 at about $120.

POOR

A narrow room shot end-on: dark carved Javanese sofas, bare white walls, a wall clock, wood-look vinyl floor.

Weak. Poorly composed down a tight space, empty wall dominates the frame, and it reads as an unoccupied rental rather than a holiday house for 14. The pool — named in 9 reviews — is nowhere in the lead image.

- 46% of the 48 photos are portrait, which crop badly in Airbnb's landscape search grid

WHAT TO DO, IN ORDER

Replace the cover photo
Lead with the pool or the best exterior. The current lead image is a narrow room with bare walls; the pool is named in 9 reviews and is the market's dominant filter.
- NOW

Put Saturday pricing in
Saturday and Tuesday both cost $124. Half this property's reviews are in Indonesian — domestic weekend groups are the core demand, and they are being sold Saturdays at midweek rates.
- NOW

Fix the bathroom expectation
A guest states only bedroom 1 is ensuite and the other five share bathrooms outside the rooms. The listing shows "4 baths" and says nothing about the layout. This is what drives the 4.89 accuracy score.
- SOON

Stop charging for extra beds at the door
The same review reports cash charges per extra bed beyond the guest limit. Price it into the listing or state it — surprise charges are an accuracy and review risk.
- SOON

Re-shoot or re-order the 22 portrait photos
46% of the set is portrait and crops badly in search results.
- SOON

Warn about the access road
Two reviews mention a narrow entry and difficulty with a large car. Saying it up front converts a complaint into an expectation.

MISMATCH

A white-painted brick living room with brown leather recliners, a large wall-mounted TV, a patterned rug and a standing fan.

The single clearest mismatch in the portfolio. The listing is titled 'Luxurious Traditional House' and asks $235 a night; the cover shows a generic suburban lounge with almost nothing Javanese in it. A guest who has just seen this thumbnail at rank #3 has no reason to click through to the price.

- 91% landscape — technically the best-shot set in the portfolio
- 8 exterior and 7 of bedroom 5, but exactly ONE living-room photo and ONE bathroom photo
- That single bathroom photo is captioned 'Half bathroom' — the same error the listing header carries

Fix the bathroom field

The header reads "16+ guests · 5 bedrooms · 7 beds · Half-bath". AirDNA records 5.5 baths and the Expedia and Hotels.com entries describe five. It is filtered out of every search where a guest sets a bathroom minimum.

It ranks #3 for the main large-group search and still converts 26%. The thumbnail — a suburban lounge with leather recliners and a wall TV — does not read as the "Luxurious Traditional House" the title promises at $235 a night. This is a conversion problem, not a visibility problem.

Photograph the bathrooms and the living space

One living-room photo and one bathroom photo across 46 images, against 8 exteriors and 7 of bedroom 5.

SOON

Add a BBQ and karaoke

A guest names both as standard for a Jogja group villa and notes neither is here. For a property targeting 16-guest family and office groups, this is the segment's table stakes.

WHAT TO DO, IN ORDER

NOW Treat this as a relaunch, not a tune-up

Zero reviews in 12 months; the last one is from January 2025. Nothing here compounds until the listing starts moving again.

NOW Re-shoot the photos

22 images, 64% of them portrait, no exterior at all, and the balcony — the property's name and its only differentiator — is not in the cover.

NOW Set a checkout time

The listing has a check-in time and no checkout time. It is the only one of the six missing it.

SOON Drop the permanent 13% discount

It is the deepest standing discount in the portfolio on the lowest rate, and it has produced no bookings for a year. Price is not the constraint.

SOON Pick one positioning

Airbnb sells a whole 3-bedroom house for 10; Agoda sells "Bisma Balcony Homestay By Zuzu", a budget chain product. The two cannot both be true to the same guest.

A review notes the host runs a small restaurant so breakfast is covered. Breakfast is what Villa Juliette monetises.

Market context

AIRDNA · SLEMAN

Sleman, where five of the six sit

Active listings	1,808 +14.3% yr
Average daily rate	$47.98 -3.5%
Occupancy	37% -3.0%
5+ bedroom share of supply	6%
Listings with a pool	48%
Airbnb-only listings	72.5%
Minimum stay of 1 night	89%
Flexible cancellation	53.5%

Supply grows 14% a year while rate and occupancy fall. The portfolio's structural edge is size — large houses are 6% of supply and five of these six are in that band. A pool is not an edge; half the market has one. Note also that all six run Airbnb's Firm cancellation policy in a market where 53.5% of listings are Flexible.

What Jogja guests complain about

- Noise from nearby roads and mosques
- Occasional issues with hot water availability
- Some listings lack maintenance or require repairs
- Difficulty navigating narrow streets
- Insufficient privacy in shared accommodations

The portfolio's own reviews echo the market's list almost exactly: mosquitoes at Anggraini and Joglo Wardani, a narrow access road at Larasati and Villa Juliette, an electrical fault and a closed pool at Kumbakarna. Hot water is listed as "not included" on Joglo Wardani — a $235-a-night property in a market where hot water is a named complaint.

01 Restore the website and the direct-booking engine

The brand site is offline and the booking engine that used to sit behind it goes with it, so every stay currently pays platform commission and the link in circulation from social leads nowhere. The registration is paid through January 2027, which makes this a recovery job measured in days rather than a rebuild.

Evidence Property pages return 404 · the /property booking engine is offline · brand social account no longer reachable

02 Turn the weekend on

Four of the six charge the same on a Saturday as a Tuesday. There is no content to write, no photography to commission and no capital to spend — it is a pricing rule, applied once, across roughly 104 high-demand nights a year.

Evidence Larasati, Anggraini, Kumbakarna and Bisma: Sat = Tue, sampled live

03 Replace six cover photos

Four of these houses have a pool and not one of them opens on it. Kumbakarna leads with a kitchen worktop and a portable gas burner; Joglo Wardani leads with leather recliners under the title "Luxurious Traditional House". The photos already exist — 244 of them.

Evidence 6 of 6 covers are interiors · 0 of 4 pools in a lead image

04 Fix Joglo Wardani's bathroom field

It ranks #3 for the main large-group search and converts at 26%. It is visible; it is not believed. The header says a 16-guest house has a Half-bath, while AirDNA records 5.5 and the OTAs describe five. One field.

Evidence Verified live · AirDNA 5.5 baths · Expedia and Hotels.com describe 5

05 Start answering reviews in public

184 reviews, zero public responses, from a Superhost with a 100% private response rate who replies within the hour. The work is already being done — it just never appears where the next guest reads.

Evidence 0 / 184 across all six listings

06 Drop the standing discount

Five of six run a permanent 8.6–13.1% markdown on every date, New Year and Eid included. Villa Juliette runs none and out-earns the other five combined. Discounting peak dates is not demand generation.

Evidence Discount visible on every one of the 8 sampled windows

07 Treat Bisma Balcony as a relaunch

Zero reviews in twelve months, last one January 2025, the deepest discount and the lowest rate in the portfolio. Price is demonstrably not the constraint. It needs photos, a checkout time and one clear positioning before it needs anything else.

Evidence 0 reviews in 12m · 22 photos, 64% portrait · no exterior shot

08 Settle which brand owns the guest

The same buildings are sold under at least four different names: Alterstay on Airbnb, Bukit Vista on tiket.com and Agoda, OYO as Capital O, and Zuzu on Agoda. A guest comparing two of those pages sees two different products at two different prices for one address, and no single brand accumulates the reviews, the repeat stays or the direct relationship. Whatever the commercial arrangement behind it, this is worth resolving before any money goes into photography or pricing.

Evidence Oemah Larasati, Omah Gerjen 29, Dalem Kamulyan and Bisma Balcony each appear under a different manager brand

How to read these numbers

- Revenue and occupancy are AirDNA estimates, not Alterstay's books — modelled from observed calendar and pricing behaviour. Good enough to size a gap and rank properties; not accounting.
- Bisma Balcony has no AirDNA revenue record at all. Combined with zero reviews since January 2025, that is the finding rather than a gap in the data.
- Rates were sampled live on 10–11 September 2026 for eight separate stay windows per property, always 2 adults. Peak-window rates are for those specific dates and will move.
- Search positions are one snapshot from one query, dates and device. Airbnb personalises results, so treat rank as directional — the useful signal is that Joglo Wardani appears at #3 and still converts at 26%.
- Review translations are ours. 48 of the 184 reviews are in Indonesian; quoted lines have been translated and trimmed, with the sense preserved.
- The score is our model, not Airbnb's — a consistent way to rank fixable problems.
